Q. In your retrospective opinion which were the three best and the three worst appointments made by President Nixon in his first Administration?—Ernest Henry, Chicago, Ill.

A. Three of the best appointments: Henry Kissinger as National Security Affairs Adviser; Daniel Moynihan as Urban Affairs Adviser, and Pat Gray as acting head of the FBI. Three of the worst appointments: John N. Mitchell as U.S. Attorney General; Maurice Stans as Secretary of Commerce, and William Rehnquist as Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.
